DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claim 1, 2, 5-8, 9, 10, 13-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hardaway et al. Hardaway et al. disclose a drum type washing machine with a tub 34 and a drum 35 rotatably installed in the tub. Also taught are water inlet valves 40 and 42 (for hot and cold water respectively) and a conduit 48 for connecting the water inlet to the wash aid dispensers 60, 62, and 64 wherein the connection between the water inlet and the conduit is higher than that connecting the conduit to the detergent box (Fig. 3). Furthermore, the conduit is made of a material that can withstand varying degrees of water pressure and therefore can be considered stiff. Figure 3 depicts pipe 48 protruding from valves 44 and 48 and said pipe being built into the valve allowing the passage of water. The opposite end of said pipe connects to protrusions 66, 68, and 70 which are built into dispensers 60, 62, and 64.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 3-4 and 11-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hardaway. As stated above, Hardaway discloses a washing machine with a water inlet disposed above the detergent boxes. However, Hardaway does not distinctly describe the water conduit as bent or slant. In Figure 3, Hardaway depicts water recycling line 84 being both bent and slant before reaching nozzle 51. This structural orientation achieves the result of expelling remaining water out of pipe 84. Furthermore, the orientation of pipe 48 also allows remaining water to leave the pipe and also contains a bend before valve 72. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention, to orient conduit 48 similarly to pipe 84 at a slant, as taught by Hardaway, as an alternative method of expelling remaining water in the conduit.
